The Challenge:

How can we ensure a successful launch? What if we're the second or third to market?

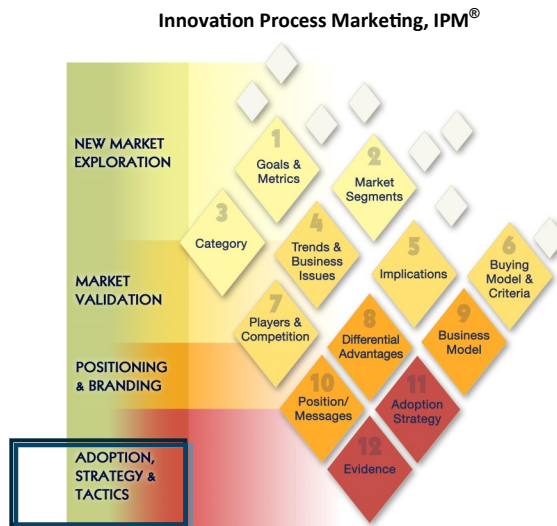

What VMI does:

We deliver the critical path for rapid acceleration of awareness and adoption of your innovation, with the prime objective of shortening time-to-money, achieving higher margins and reaching the early market as quickly as possible.

IPM's Adoption Strategy begins with the identification of early adopters/opinion leaders who have a need for your solution. Once the need is fulfilled to their satisfaction, they will evangelize your solution. These are the people whose opinions are well regarded, who offer enthusiastic, word-of-mouth endorsements and provide the early stage evidence that influence their community to adopt your solution. By developing and utilizing programs focused on them, you can accelerate market awareness and adoption while lowering your cost of sales. The results of this strategy will enable your solution to achieve its potential in a shorter period of time, and reinforce your brand as vital and strategic. Ultimately, accelerating market acceptance is equivalent to shortening the time-to-money process. It's this cash that will enable the infusion of money back into your organization, including product development that will spur growth and take your company or business unit from being a niche player into becoming the mainstream authority. And it is this kind of performance that the financial community values, leading to the greatest reward: To control and dominate your market.

VMI Results:

The first to enter a new market with an innovation gets two times the market share of the next entrant! VMI delivers an actionable plan for utilizing opinion leaders and launching your innovation. We also further refine the positioning messages with evidence that will substantiate the messages and make them compelling and highly targeted to capture prospects.

The IPM Adoption Strategy is based on the fact that not all sales are equal. Customer segmentation is key to achieving the corporation's goals. The adoption rate of your innovation by the market closely tracks to your ability to gain acceptance by important early adopters/opinion leaders.
